RUNYON'S SMILE

I wouldn't think much of a case of itch that didn't make me scratch, and I wouldn't give a damn for a case of religion that won't take the dirty gab, rascality and cussedness out of a man of woman only on Sunday. A religion that will permit a fellow to serve the devil six days and twenty-two hours in each week, and then take him to heaven for just giving two hours to the lord on Sunday, is not the kind this little religious magazine is preaching. Give me the kind, or brand, that make men love their neighbor as themselves, feel interested in their welfare, and you will have the very kind that the Saviour had when he broke bread with beggars and slept in the brush.

How I long to see the day when there will be established here in these United States, a United Commonwealth of Comrades.

If "the buy a bale of cotton" proposition had not have materialized just when it did, where would the Anderson county farmers have been by this time?—Damfino.

If an angel in heaven would come down and mix with society people in their churches on Sunday, it would be impossible to get back into heaven without being fumigated and cleaned with carbolic acid, formaldehyde and lye.

The little worthless, wiggling, painted "gal" who will attend "parties" in zero weather and sit around half the night naked down to her seventh rib, is just the sweet little thing that will complain of "cold weather" when her poor old mother asks her to bring a bucket of water.

The boy who calls his father "old man" is generally a little stinking "puke" who sucks cigarettes.

Russia in her terrible struggle of war, is dictated to by "Grand Dukes," while in America, our finances are dictated by Dampukes.

Quite a commotion occurred among the jay-birds, Easter Sunday at Tucker, caused by the artificial cherries worn on the hats of some of the colored sisters.

Did you ever hear of a man marrying a woman to reform her.

A painted, chalked, perfumed wiggling girl always has a good opinion of herself.

You don't have to "go" to heaven any more than you have to "go" to hell, as you make both—which one are you tagging at?

When so many of the guilty rich go unpunished, the poor is very likely to lose respect for the majesty of the law.

I had sooner be a coked penny in a tramp's pocket, than a dollar donated by a rotten old hypocrite in the church contribution box.

I am sure if the average man would quit trying to bore an inch hole with a gimlet, they would feel and look more natural.

In base defiance of the law of gravitation, prices go up and won't come down.

There is very little difference in the smell of a ripe hog pen and the breath of a cigarette sucker.

But there is a difference in a hog and the "thing" that will suck a cigarette—a hog won't do it.

If you want to stop a fellow from speaking to you just loan him forty-five cents.

Of all of the contemptible folks on earth, its the weasel-eyed, lantern-jawed, hatchet-faced, knock-kneed hypocrites that are keeping good respectable people away from the churches.

Some of my critics accuse me of being very much liking in good English. Let that be as it may, I have the ability to use words to express my thoughts, even if they may not be exactly correct.

If I had my way about it, every Democrat in the United States would be forced to have a one dollar war stamp struck on the end of his smeller.

No doubt this little religious magazine may at times seem harsh, and I faithfully promise it will never be harsher than the truth.

A woman who stays at home Sundays with nothing but a petticoat to wear, is a perfect lady compared to the old she-devil who goes to church just to show her fine cloths, that in many cases is not even paid for.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY KNOX CIRCUIT COURT April Term, 1915.

To the Hon. F. D. Sampson, Judge of the Knox Circuit Court:—

We the undersigned Grand Jurors empaneled for this term of the Court beg leave to submit the following report:

We have made a thorough investigation of all violations of the penal, and criminal law, indicting such persons as we felt, under the evidence, were guilty.

We have paid special attention to the violation of the local option law and carrying concealed weapons; we have also investigated the violation of the election laws, but we find that the use of whiskey and money or other things to influence voters has not to our knowledge been done within the confines of this County.

We have visited the jail and other public offices of the County and find them in a good and sanitary condition, and well kept.

We heartily endorse the actions of Judge Sampson in stamping out the blind tigers and bringing all bootleggers to justice, as well as stamping out the nefarious practice of the use of whiskey and money in elections.

We also endorse Judge Sampson's actions in calling a special term of the Court to be convened on Monday the 9th day of August for the purpose of investigating the way and manner in which the primary will be held on August 7, 1915.

And we recommend that said term be called and that a Grand Jury be empaneled for the purpose of investigating the way and manner in which said election is held and the use of liquor or money to influence voters, so that Knox County may keep upon the high plain of citizenship to which your Honor has, by your untiring efforts has placed it.

We have now completed our work for this term and have performed that duty without favor or affection, returning such indictments as the law warrants.

Respectfully submitted,
LEE BAIN
Foreman.

Resolutions of Respect

The death angel has once more invaded our ranks and placed from our number a true and loyal brother and again brings to us that sacred admonition man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble. The great architect of the universe has seen fit in his infinite wisdom for reasons better known to himself than to us to call our brother, James Hart to that house not built with hands eternal in the heaven.

Therefore be it resolved that in the death of brother Hart the country has lost one of its best citizens, the family a devoted husband and father. We are at loss to express our sympathy to the bereaved wife and orphan children, ever remembering to point them to Him who has said "I will temper the wind to the shorn lamb and be the widows God. Resolved

That a page of our record be set apart for the resolutions and a copy sent the bereaved family, also a copy sent to the Kentucky Odd Fellow and The Mountain Advocate, all of which is fraternally submitted in Friendship, Love and Truth.

monopolies—only that and nothing more.—Marion (Ia.) Register.

Every claim that the Democrwage earners is the paramount issue at the present time.—Marion (Ia.) Register.

ington city for good.—Wayne-

Simultaneous Come-Back

Both President Wilson and the Republican party are predicting the return of good times, their only disagreement being as to the time of their arrival. He professes to believe they are almost here while the Republican party knows that their come-back will be simultaneous with the come-back of a Protective Tariff early in 1917.
Mt. Vernon (Ind.) Republican.

Shoulder to Shoulder

By sheer force of superior numbers the Republican hosts will overwhelm their ancient enemies, the Free Traders, in the next great struggle for supremacy in the nation. All states and disagreements among them have been forgotten in the presence of the great opportunity soon to confront them, that of restoring prosperity to the country through the enactment of the only kind of fiscal policy that can be dependent upon to keep American factories, American workmen and American business active and prosperous, from year to year, namely a Protective policy that insures the American market to Americans.

On this program all Republicans will stand shoulder to shoulder and heart to heart in 1916—Springfield (Mo.) Republican.

That Woodrow Wilson intends to be the Democratic nominee for the Presidency in 1916 is definitely announced by A. Mitchell Palmer, former Free-Trade representative in Congress from a Pennsylvania district, defeated Free-Trade candidate for the Pennsylvania Senatorship, and now holding a fat job as member of the Court of Claims of the District of Columbia. Palmer is quoted to this effect in the Philadelphia Public Ledger of April 23.
Presumably the announcement of the Wilson candidacy is authorized. The Baltimore convention, it will be remembered, declared specially for a single term. But that small circumstance can no
to get in on, not to stand on. The Professor wants indorsement and vindication. Perhaps he will get them. Perhaps the American electorate will be crazy enough to approve his Free-Trade, industry-smashing, business-wrecking record. Perhaps. But we think that Champ Clark had it about right when he said, regarding the nomination in 1916, that Wilson could have it if he wanted it, but if he didn't want it, nobody else would.

FOND OF SALAD?

TRY SOME SAWDUST

Leader of Chicago Apyrtrophers Eats Fifteen Dishes in Day and Feels No Pain.

Chicago, Ill.—The apyrtrophers—
"unfired fooders"—call themselves
"nature's epicures." They put a good deal of faith in nuts.

A new article of diet has been brought to their attention by the leader of the flock, Prof. George J.
Drew. It is sawdust.

Although the conservative medical fraternity may be a bit skeptical, Drew is not. His claims for sawdust are:

"It stimulates the nerves of the peristalsis by the tickling from the little points of the sawdust.

"The fiber sweeps out your interior like a broom. Put it in your salad to exercise your teeth."

Then, to prove the harmlessness of the remedy, Prof. Drew at four tea-spoonsful of sawdust in a "syndee." A "syndee" is not as deadly as it sounds. It consists of lettuce, tomatoes, bananas and sawdust.

"I'm still smiling," remarked Drew at the conclusion of his demonstration.
"I haven't any pain in my sawdust and I have eaten 15 dishes of it today."

The professor is short and inclined to corpulency. He says his good health is due to uncooked foods, also plenty of nuts and sawdust.

Let it not be supposed, however, that ordinary crude sawdust will serve the purpose; there are only two varieties of trees, the professor said, that may be used. They are the elm and linden.

QUEEN OF SHEBA'S
DIAMONDS SEIZED

New York Treasury Agents Take Possession of Two Egg-Shaped Jewels.

PRINCESS WAS RECENT OWNER

Turk Accused as Smuggler Says Famous Monarch Wore Them.

New York—Treasury agents have seized from A. Anpikadjian, resident of Constantinople, now in this city, two egg-shaped diamonds weighing more than 15 karats each, and said to have been worn centuries ago by the Queen of Sheba.

The diamonds are said to be of great value, not only because of their size and quality, but because of their antiquity.

Collector of the Port Dudley Field Station directed the seizure of the jewels, which, it is claimed, Anpikad-jian failed to declare to the customs officials when he arrived in the United States.

Upon being questioned after the seizure of the diamonds, their owner said he had purchased them in the jewelry market at Constantinople from an Egyptian Princess, who declared they had been in her family for centuries, and had been worn at one time by the Queen of Sheba. At the time of the purchase, he said, the diamonds were attached to two emeralds, about 1 inch square. The emeralds and the diamonds formed a large pair of earrings. The emeralds were purchased by another dealer, he said.

The seizure of the diamonds was the result of recent activity on the part of agents of the Treasury Department. Collector Malone received information some time ago that a number of dealers in precious stones had come to this country since the beginning of the war in Europe.

At the request of the collector, the Treasury Department detailed officers to investigate all foreign dealers who had arrived in this country and to report upon the conditions in the diamond and jewelry districts in this and other large cities in the United States.
The agents finally got on the track of the two diamonds, and Anpikadjian was found in the office of a Malden Lane diamond dealer, where he was offering the stones for sale.

Council for Anpikadjian contended that the diamonds were artistic antiques, free from duty, and that his agent had shown them to the custom officers upon his arrival, and they had passed them.

COURTS THE MOTHER,
WEDS THE DAUGHTER

Wife Said to Have Been Won By Flowery Eloquence—A Mother's Sacrifice

Colum, N. Y.—The thing that is now puzzling the residents of this peaceful hamlet is why 73-year-old Edwin Hawkins, of East Moriches, suddenly ceased his courtship of Mrs. Lucille Overton and has just married her daughter, Miss Christina Ophelia, who is thirty-seven years his junior.

Three years ago, when the East Mo-riches man came to live at the Overton homestead, it was hinted among the neighbors that he had an infatuation for Mrs. Overton, who is a widow, and it was expected among the gossips that they would some day "make a match of it."

Consequently there was no end of excitement when the aged preacher married the widow's daughter. No reason is given for the break in the supposed affection of the bridegroom for the bride's mother. They will not talk.

The bridegroom is a lay preacher of the "Plymouth Brothers" doctrine and used to call meetings at the home of the bride's mother, where he would propound to the neighboring farmers the light as he sees it.

It is understood that he has a great eloquence of address and that his young bride was often seen watching him with wistful eyes when he was in the heat of his flowery flow of words.
It is suggested by some that she fell in love with his voice, and that the mother has sacrificed her claim to her outstanding rival.

The bridegroom is a widower and has been married twice before. He has several grown children.

Lott, Texas, at the age of 25 years.

The twelve children, brothers and sisters, have a combined weight of 3,600 pounds, or an average weight of 250 pounds each. "They have eighty-five children and sixty-five grandchildren. All of these descendants are in ise of coming up to the family standard in this respect.

of unusual weight, but they possess prodigious physical strength. They are all farmers and some of them have made remarkable records in crop yields.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Horace William-

granting a license to George Thole, 23 years old, a deaf and dumb auto driver, declared:

"I consider Thole one of the best chauffeurs in Cincinnati, because of the marvelous quality of his skin that enables him to detect sounds that a regular ear would miss.

"Thole has proved that he can get along without ears. I had him run on street car tracks and, more quickly than my ears could hear, Thole's sensi-

proach of a car from behind.

"We tried him on a car with an en-he knew there was trouble every time.

POISON OF SNAKE USED AS MEDICINE

DISCOVERY WAS THE RESULT OF AN ACCIDENT

Inject New Drug in Blood of Patients
—Its Use Opposed By Some Physicians

The venom of rattlesnakes and vipers and the poison of bees have for several years been used as medicine. The medicine made from rattlesnake venom is called crotalin. According to the doctors who employ it it is especially useful in the treatment of epilepsy, but is also of value in treating asthma, neuralgia, neuritis, nervous exhaustion, sciatica and pleurisy. Administering it is merely combining one poison with another. Crotalin has the specific effect of reducing the coagulation or clotting of the blood.

The mouth of a rattlesnake is fitted with two long, sharp fangs that work backward and forward on hinges. When its mouth is closed these fangs are turned back and point down the snake's throat. When it opens its mouth the points of the fangs move forward until the teeth are in the normal position for biting. Each fang has a long, narrow hole on its front surface. This hole is the opening of a tube that runs up inside the tooth and communicates with a little sac in the roof of the mouth where the venom is stored. When the snake "strikes" and its fangs sink into the flesh the venom runs down the tube and is left in the blood.

It never occurred to anyone that this violent poison might prove useful in medicine until a doctor noticed that a Texas epileptic who had been bitten by a rattlesnake was cured. This urged the doctor to try hypodermic injections of rattlesnake venom on patients. Other doctors have adopted the treatment, though there are many who have no faith in it and some who contend that it is injurious rather than beneficial.

The method of obtaining the virus is simple. The snake is seized by the neck, immediately around the head, with the forefinger and thumb. A small beaker glass is covered with aseptic gauze and held so that the serpent strikes it with mouth wide open. This is repeated until all the poison in the snake's sac is exhausted. The beaker now contains a yellowish liquid which rapidly dries into a substance resembling amber. Solutions of this in various strengths are put up in sealed glass tubes.

The drug is injected into the back of the patient's arms, not more than 1200th of a grain being given at a first. The maximum dose is 1-50th of a grain but this is dangerous. The frequency of the injections and length of treatment vary according to the circumstances.

The injection is followed by burning, stinging pain, with numbness of the arm. Swelling follows. This reaches its maximum in from twenty-four to thirty-six hours, and then subsides.

UHLMEYER ATTEMPTS SOME AERIAL DUTIES

Fire Department and Whole Town
Turn Out to Rescue 400-Pound
Citizen from Housetop.

Lawrenceville, Ind.—All the inhabitants and most of the rope in this town spent a busy afternoon when James M. Uhlmeier, a farmer weighing 400 pounds, climbed onto the roof of his two-story home to repair a shredded chimney. Just what put the idea that he was eligible for lofty repairing into Mr. Uhlmeier's usually conservative mind will not be ascertained until he becomes fully conscious.

Mr. Uhlmeier's home, which is insured against everything but landslide, started to creak about 2:30, when he reached the garret and started up a four-step ladder which had up to that time borne an excellent reputation. Uhlmeier had just succeeded in exploding the crystal of his watch, and was half way out of the skylight when the ladder with a faint groan, splintered and crumbling ignominiously away. Mr. Uhlmeier was saved from a bad fall by his chin, which caught on the edge of the skylight.

No one will ever know probably the thoughts that raced through Uhlmeier's mind at this time. He knew that if he dropped to the floor of the garret he would be bound to wind up in the subcellar of his home, and to avoid this all he had to do was to lift four hundred pounds out of an opening three feet square.

To make a long story readable Mr. Uhlmeier reached the roof. To make the same story remarkable he fixed the wind swept chimney, and to make the whole town excited he was stricken with nervous prostration and started to scream.

Persons in all walks of life ran to the scene. The fire department clanged up; the town derrick was hauled forth; a steel crane was rigged out and thousands of yards of rope were thrown up to where the noise was coming from.

Uhlmeier finally tied himself into a great bundle and bands of men on each side of the house manned the ropes and lowered him gently, using no hooks. The only accident was the knocking down of the chimney.

Although many persons in Lawrenceville appeared indifferent, the physicians announced that Mr. Uhlmeier was in no danger.

The Cruise of the Trundlebed

Two little boys while away the time in bed, before they grow sleepy, by playing "Sailing Out to Sea." Just as they have everything fixed to start on "The Cruise of the Trundlebed," they fall fast asleep, so a good fairy comes on the scene and takes them on a journey around the world. In their dreams, they visit a number of foreign countries, but they manage to get back just as the clock strikes four, at which hour the fairy finds she must disappear, as she is not allowed out after daylight. Just as she is making her escape, the youngsters wake up and try to catch her, but she gets away. The two boys compare notes and conclude that all they had seen must be real, and the curtain goes down as they scamper off with their clothes under their arms.

SECOND HAND AUTO IS ROAD'S ONLY ENGINE

12-Mile Line in Kansas Now a Money Maker After Being Long Considered a Dead One.

Westmoreland, Kan.—The ingenuity of C. E. Morris, receiver for the Kansas, Southern & Gulf Railroad, in utilizing a second-hand automobile for motive power, has changed that road from a losing to a profitable enterprise and it has been purchased and taken out of receivership by a new company known as the Westmoreland Interurban Railway Co. It will continue to have the distinction of being the only gasoline railroad in the country, as the new owners are strong believers in Morris' automobile motive power.

The road, a dream of the early 80s, was projected to traverse the wheat belt, connecting the Dakotas with the Gulf Coast. Work started at Blaine, in Pottawatomie County and after 12 miles had been completed extending to Westmoreland, the county seat, the promoters could find no further sale for their bonds and had to abandon construction. For equipment they had two engines and two cars, so they began to operate over the short stretch that was completed, as it was the only railroad in the county.

The road never paid dividends, but had to borrow to pay the interest on bonds. About five years ago the engines wore out and there was no money for repairs. Then the state took charge and appointed Morris receiver.

Morris traded the two locomotives for a reasonably good one and kept the trains going with some regularity. He tried to resign several times but the court wouldn't let him. He fired a lot of useless employees like conductors, station agents, passenger agents and freight agents and made the fireman also act as conductor and brakeman. Morris also got a court order that let him raise the freight rates and he charged 5 cents a mile for passenger fares, but even this would not make the road pay expenses.

About two years ago Morris disposed of the old engine and purchased a second-hand automobile. For the front wheels he substituted the trucks of a hand-car and for the rear wheels two locomotive front wheels. The body had room for six passengers, besides the driver, and Morris built some miniature freight cars by putting bodies on hand cars. The road now has three freight cars, each with a capacity of two tons, and is not only giving satisfactory service, but is making a profit.

MOSQUITO'S GREATEST ENEMY IS THE DUCK

Proved By Experiments, Says Doctor
Eaton, Who Is State Health
Commissioner

If you are fearful of malaria or any disease carried by mosquitoes keep ducks, for the duck is one of the greatest known enemies of the mosquito, and therefore of the disease transmitted by this pestiferous insect. This is what Dr. Samuel G. Eaton, State Health Commissioner of Pennsylvania, has to say of the efficiency of the duck:

"After trying the ability of fish to devour larvae and pupae of mosquitoes, with varied success, I built two danks near together on the same stream, so that each would have the same environment for the breeding of mosquitoes. Each covered nearly 1400 square feet. In one twenty mallard ducks were permitted to feed, while the other was entirely protected from water fowl, but well stocked with goldfish.

"The one in which the ducks fed was for several months entirely free from mosquitoes, while the pond protected from ducks and stocked with fish was swarming with young insects in different cycles of life.

"To the infested pond ten well-fed mallard ducks were then admitted, and as they entered the pond they were first attracted by tadpoles. They, however, soon recognized the presence of larvae and pupae of the mosquito and immediately turned their attention to them, ravenously devouring them in preference to any other foodstuff present. At the end of twenty-four hours no pupae were to be found, and in forty-eight hours only a few small larvae survived.

"While other birds, fish, spiders, beetles, crickets, arthropods and reptiles are all enemies of the mosquito, none of them has the wide geographical range and the capacity of devouring large numbers of the larvae and pupae on land and water as has the duck."

ROOSTER ON HIS CONSCIENCE

Stolen in 1873, Remorseful Man Sends Owner Check 42 Years After.

Atlanta, Ga.—"I have owed you for a gamecock since 1873. I am sending you the money for it."

This short note, wrapped around a check for $17, was received in a letter by Jacob Levin, well known Atlantian, recently, and he has been wondering ever since at the spirit of mortal man which will feel remorse after 40 years and pay out money for a debt long since forgotten.

Also, he isn't quite sure who his friend is, as there was no signature to the letter, and the check was signed only by the cashier of the bank in Columbia, S. C., where it was posted.

"When I left South Carolina in 1871," said Levin, "and went west, I left a lot of chickens behind me. I have a faint recollection of a neighbor who wanted to buy a game rooster which I refused to part with. Some time later I recall receiving a letter from my sister saying that particular rooster had been stolen.

"This was the last I heard of the occurrence until about eight years ago, when I was living in Atlanta. I received a check for $10 from the cashier of a Sparrenburg bank, who said it was left with him to forward to me. I had some correspondence with him telling him I knew of no such debt and was at a loss as to the sender. I never found out who it was at that time, and finally I refused to accept the check. Now that he tells me about the gamecock I've decided to keep it. It's the greatest case of 'conscience money' I ever heard of."

INTERESTING NEW INVENTIONS

A motor sled attachment patented by F. J. Matthews, of Brill, Wis., has an advantage over other inventions of the kind in that it works well and is very simple in construction. The runners may be attached to any automobile without requiring special reconstruction of the vehicles made from the removal of its wheels. The usual steering and propelling devices of the automobile are used. A novel feature is an arrangement of springs which tends to prevent jolting.

A machine for straightening auger bits has been invented by E. T. McPherson, a mechanic of Wilmington, O., and it is being used in the factory where he is employed, known as the largest auger bit plant in the world.

Because flashlight powders are not swift enough for the most rapid photography an electric device has been invented which lights the powder and then snaps a camera shutter when the burning powder is at its greatest brilliancy.

A candle holder which may be fastened to any projection with a thumb screw has been patented by a New York man for the use of mechanics.

A patent has been granted for a sail boat that can not be capsized by wind, in which the mast is hinged and so connected with a counterweight as to hold the hull steady.

A tractor is mounted on the back of a recently patented automobile headlight to enable a driver to see vehicles approaching the back of his car.

For touring automobiles there has been invented a bed to be carried under the top of a car and lowered into position for use when desired.

For emergency use by firemen there has been invented a fire and water-proof hood that can be carried in a pocket, and which when opened will give a ten-minute supply of fresh air.

Eye glasses have been patented that are suspended from a band worn around the head without any pressure on the nose.

A Wonderful Healing Influence in Kidney Troubles

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it as Stone in the bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicine for some time, later having some Swamp-Root in the house I decided to try it and felt much relieved. While taking the second bottle commenced to pass Gravel in urine until I had passed in all at least a half dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since—and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp-Root.

WOMEN TO ENTER NEW YORK FIELD

New Organization Seeks Opportunities of Unusual Kind for the Idle.

New York.—Presiding over grocery stores, managing butcher shops, designing apartment houses and various other occupations of an unusual nature are among those which the newly organized body of women which at present calls itself the Committee for the Promotion of Business Opportunities for Women, desires to open to persons of its sex.

The committee, which numbers among its members many women prominent in the business and professional world, is still too young to have decided on a permanent name.

In the meantime the members are working assiduously to prepare a list of new occupations and remunerative to women.

"We would like to get as many outdoor occupations as possible," explained Mrs. Robert Adams, one of the charter members. "There is landscape gardening, for example. That would be splendid work and in the fresh air. And it would be one of which women are well adapted."

"Why shouldn't women run grocery stores or possibly butcher shops?" suggested Mrs. Bruere.

"My sister has just started a restaurant in Brooklyn, and, although it is new, it promises to be successful," said Miss Grace C. Strachan, leader of the Interborough Teachers' Association.

"One of our objects is to take care of an oversupply of teachers," explained Mrs. Charles Beard. "There are so many women who teach because they do not think of any other thing to do. We want to provide them with opportunities which will give them a chance to develop along lines more suited to them, and this will give us a better brand of teacher, women who take it up because they like and not because it seems the only thing to do."

"It is appalling to find so many middle-class women out of work. They rank between the professional woman and the factory hand. There are the ones we are most anxious to help."

"One of the most important openings, in my opinion, is designing apartment houses. These are the work of men now, and they are wretched failures as comfortable places in which to live. If women had a hand in designing them I am sure there would be great improvements."

"As a league we feel we are going to have a chance to force open doors to which women have not been admitted in the world of work. We do not intend to go out and get places for women. The Intercollegiate Bureau of Occupation is doing that; but we can find new employment suited to them. This is our aim."

PATHETIC ROMANCE OF AGED "LONESOME BILL"

Death of His Promised Mountain Bride Changed His Whole Life—Died a Hermit.

Big Laurel, Va.—While hunting for coon in the mountains north of here the hunters came upon the cabin of old "Lonesome Bill," and seeing no light in the house, investigated and found the old man was dead. Whether the aged hermit froze to death or died from illness no one knows, but it is thought that he had been in poor health for some time and it is likely he succumbed to old age.

His exact age is not known, as all his family have long been dead or moved away, but it is supposed that he was near 100 years old, probably older. The old man was seldom seen away from his mountain home and how he lived is still a mystery. It is said that at the age of 18 or 20 he came to the mountains from the eastern part of the state with his father, mother and three sisters. They were all nice people and Bill was well educated, having graduated from some eastern university. He fell in love with one of the mountain girls near where his father had bought a large farm, and was about to marry her when his father, Mark Alexander, intervened.

There was some trouble between father and son and the son finally succeeded in securing his father's consent to the marriage, but before the day came for the wedding the girl was taken sick and died after a few days' illness.

From the day of her death Bill Alexander was a changed man. He went into the forest, high upon the mountain side, and built himself a rude cabin, where he lived until he died. At first he would see no visitors and came near killing several persons, including his father.

Not many months later his father died and two sisters married, leaving his younger sister and mother alone. He received them in his cabin and they remained with him for two days, when they sold out the farm, with the exception of his house and one acre, and left the country. The two sisters who married had already gone away with their husbands.

So Bill Alexander, the dashing young college man of the eighty years ago, came to be simply "Lonesome Bill" to the mountain people and he was left to brood over his lost love alone. All traces of his people having been lost, he was buried by the side of the cabin he called home. The cabin contained nothing of importance further than an old tincture of a young and pretty girl dressed after the fashion of the mountaineers of a century ago.

FORTUNES IN LOGS ON RIVER'S BED

1,000,000,000 Feet of Timber Covered by Waters of Muskegon and Its Tributaries.

LOGS ARE NOW BEING RAISED

Lumber Man Buys Up Rights to This "Treasure" That Sank in "Old Days."

Muskegon, Mich. — The operations which are being carried on along the Muskegon river and its tributary waters beat hunting for buried treasure all hollow. Ordinary treasure hunting, that is, for these operations are literally hunting for buried treasure, with the additional advantage that those who are carrying them on know just where to hunt for the treasure, and are able to convert it into cash as surely as if it were the mined money of other days.

The treasure consists of approximately 1,000,000,000 feet of logs which have rested on the bed of the river ever since the palmy days of the lumbering industry in western Michigan.

For two decades, beginning almost half a century ago, this part of Michigan was the greatest lumber center in the United States and the world as well. Here were the tallest trees, the biggest timber. Here existed the typical methods of cutting lumber in that period. Timber was so plentiful that it was gathered recklessly. The methods of taking a claim were such as to attract large numbers of lumbermen and for a hundred miles up the river the sound of axes and saws was heard on every side, far back into the country.

Logs in a profusion seemingly endless filled the Muskegon river. They filled it not only on the surface, but the entire river bottom was covered with logs, even to the deepest part of the channel. They were piled in the river in such numbers that logs on top pushed other logs to the bottom and still others came on top of those. All the river for many miles was in places a solid mass of logs.

Two years ago the dam at Big Rapids was carried away. Then was revealed to the present generation the amazing fact that the entire bottom of the Muskegon river was a mass of logs. When the dam broke great was the astonishment at the sight of that thick floor of logs. The Muskegon Company bought the rights of the original owners and began the work of removing the timber. The work of taking the logs from the river bottom has progressed until timber piles line the banks to a width of many rods for miles and miles.

Old time lumbermen of this district become loquacious and tell of the interesting scene of the time when the "river hogs," as the waders were called, made things lively in western Michigan. Muskegon was a Mecca for all kinds of workers in loggery, but especially those who were skilled in setting loose huge piles of logs which had become blocked in enormous stacks while floating down stream. These logs would often become wedged together, when a skilled "river hog" would, with a cut back, remove the keystone log and let the huge heap go tumbling free with thundering noise and swirling currents, only perhaps to become blocked again in another place.

It is probable that in all the United States there have never been such lumbering scenes nor such deeds as have been done in this last year in Big Rapids.

James Gow of Muskegon is the man at the head of the work of raising these sunken logs.

In order to have undisputed title to the big timber which he brings to the surface, Mr. Gow has purchased 25 percent of all the marks used by the old time loggers in this part of the state. He now owns 934 marks and controls many others. These marks make him undisputed possessor of all timbers he pulls out of their bed of mud at the bottom of the river, which runs from Muskegon on up past Big Rapids.

One thing Mr. Gow had to contend with for some time was the claim that because the logs have remained in the river with apparently no ownership for so long a time, any person had the right to salvage and keep them. One sawmill started to cut up some of these logs without securing any title to the marks, but Mr. Gow finally won out by buying up the marks from the owners and then fighting the matter out in the courts. The state supreme court has ruled the title to logs marked in any way lies in the owner of the marks on the timber. Thus Mr. Gow has a practically exclusive right on Muskegon river. He is bringing to the surface an almost incredible amount of lumber from the bottom of the river. In the last two years alone he has secured over 50,000 logs. Of this astonishing number about half have been secured near Big Rapids.

The rest have come from Maple Island and Muskegon Lake vicinities. At the latter two places the logs are raised by a machine known as a log lifter, which is little more than a screw fitted up with machinery.

Delicate Intimation

"Come to think of it, you can sit on a stool."

WISH THIS DONE,

SIGNED A. LINCOLN

How U. S. Navy Captain Gained Possession of This Relic and Story of the Three Words.

Washington, D. C.—A letter, faded with age, bearing a single line: "Wish this done. A Lincoln," is one of the treasured possessions of Capt. Daniel DeLachant, U. S. N., now stationed at Pelham, N. Y. And back of it is a story that is now given to the public.

In the darkest period of the Civil War President Lincoln was bowed by trouble. He summoned Henry Ward Beecher and Archbishop John Hughes of New York to Washington. He asked, he told them, as if the Confederacy would be recognized by England and France. He sent Henry Ward Beecher to England and Archbishop Hughes to France to talk in the cities and towns and arouse sympathy for the cause of the North.

The Archbishop was the first to return, reporting that France had small sympathy with the North, particularly among the better classes. Had as this news was, the President was grateful to the Archbishop for his report. He thanked him and added that if there was anything he could do for the Archbishop personally he should be glad.

The Archbishop replied that there was nothing—but just as he was about to leave he said:

"There is a boy, the son of a dear friend of mine, who wishes to be a soldier, but he is too young. If he could go to West Point—"

When the Archbishop left it was with the assurance that the boy would be admitted.

When he returned to New York he summoned the lad and told him that the President had offered him an appointment to West Point.

But Daniel DeLachant—for he it was—instead of being overjoyed, said: "I want to go to Annapolis."

"But there is no help for it now; the President appointed you to West Point, and there you go," returned the Archbishop.

Finally, however, the Archbishop promised that, if by the next day he still felt averse to it he would write the President that the appointment could not be accepted. Next day the boy returned and said he could not resign himself to going to West Point.

"Well, I can't ask the President to change the appointment," the Archbishop said. "But if you want to go to Washington yourself I'll write a letter to him."

The Archbishop wrote the letter, telling the boy that in all probability he would not see the President, but to go—, and if it was possible he would arrange it for him.

Off started the boy. He found the man the Archbishop had told him about and told him of the letter. The next morning a messenger for the President came to him wait a minute. On his return he said he had called the President out of a Cabinet meeting, and that he was waiting at the head of the stairs.

The boy mounted the stairs. He recalled the incident Captain DeLachant says that his most vivid recollection is of a pair of slippers which the President wore, with embroidered eyes on them. They so fascinated the boy that he kept his eyes on them; they looked like tiger's eyes. He was standing speechless, his eyes fixed to the slippers, when he heard the President say: "You have a letter to me from Archbishop Hughes?"

The boy held out the letter. The President read it and then asked: "You want to go to Annapolis?"

"Yes, Mr. Lincoln."

"The President placed the letter against the wall and added the line: 'I wish this done. A Lincoln.'"

A will desire to tell this tale, and eyed man how much it meant to him. He raced through the boys' heads. All kinds of grateful speeches crowded his brain. But all he said was: "Mr. President, you'll never regret what you have done this day."

The President smiled and turned back to the door of the Cabinet room, while the lad, his self-possession returned, bounded away to the Navy Department. Within half an hour he had his appointment to the U. S. Naval Academy.

DREW WRONG "HUBBY"

Former Flying Roller Girl Now Seeks Freedom from the "Prize"

She Won.

Penton Harbor, Mich.—Marriages at the Flying Roller colony here are, according to a bill of complaint filed in the Circuit Court by Augusta E. Holliday, a 26-year-old girl, against Allan Holliday, being negotiated under a system that approaches a lottery. The bill also makes serious charges against the head of the colony, Benjamin F. Pennell.

Mrs. Holliday says marriages in the colony were contracted in this fashion:

The girls and men were led into different rooms and then instructed to write on slips of paper the names they desired. All did so, only Mrs. Holliday says she did not get the name she wanted.

Two other girls wanted him. In such cases the couples were matched without any special regard for love.

After the wedding Mrs. Holliday quit the colony and now wants the marriage set aside. She declares the Flying Roller marriages are a "travesty on the marriage relation."

Recently some forty couples were married at the colony.

Yates Center, Kan.—Because they were defeated by the Garnett high school team in a basketball game, the members of the Yates Center team have vowed to go unshaven for a month.

YOUR HEALTH

Don't Endanger It With Calomel

It is generally agreed by experts in this country and Europe that calomel has a very violent effect on the system. This accounts for the familiar disagreeable feeling accompanying a dose, and the weakened condition following it.

LIV-VER-LAX is a harmless vegetable compound, that is a mild, but effective substitute for calomel. It has all the effectiveness, but not the effect, of calomel. Its splendid value has brought it into such wide use that in some states it has almost entirely replaced calomel.

Just try LIV-VER-LAX once, and you'll never use calomel again. Insist on the genuine, bearing the likeness of signature of L. K. Grigsby, which is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. For sale by all druggists—adv.

COOPER TELLS WHY TANLAC IS POPULAR

Because the Preparation Contains Real Merit, He Says in Statement

"If I have been successful with Tanlac," says L. T. Cooper, "it is because the preparation contains real merit.

"Tanlac is the result of many years of arduous study by my principal chemist. In fact, the two of us have carefully watched its development from the beginning of the experimental tests to its present high state of efficiency. "In cases of catarrhal affections of the mucus membrane, stomach, liver, and kidney complaints, I believe there is nothing so far discovered that will equal the action of Tanlac.

"Ever and anon someone suggests something that may tend to better our conditions, whether it may appertain to our health, our business, or our sociological state. It has, therefore, been my pleasure this time to offer to the world Tanlac.

"When I came to Louisville, I stated that the success of the medicine would be as great in this city as it was elsewhere. I offered Tanlac upon its merit, knowing full well that it would prove satisfactory if properly tested.

"The success the preparation has achieved here in Louisville is ample evidence that my confidence in Tanlac is well placed.

"A large percentage of your best people are now using the preparation, and they are daily testifying to its excellent worth as a medicine of exceptional value in instances of catarrh, stomach, liver, and kidney derangements, nervous debility, and in cases where a superior tonic is required.

"It is true that the demand for Tanlac has been large, but no larger than I had expected. Louisville is only awakening to an appreciation of the full value of such a preparation. Tanlac's success in your city will be even greater.

Tanlac, the premier preparation, is being introduced in Barbourville Ky. at Herndon Co's Store.

Confirmed Statement

Evidence Barbourville Readers Will Appreciate

Doan's Kidney Pills have done splendid work in this locality. Have merited the unstinted praise they have received.

Here's evidence of their value that none can doubt. It's testimony from this locality twice told and well confirmed.

Such endorsements are unique in the annals of medicine. Should convince the most skeptical Barbourville reader.

N. Watkins, Main St., London, Ky., says: "I had been troubled for years with my kidneys. I couldn't bend without suffering from sharp twinges through the small of my back. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and I knew my kidneys were causing the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of the trouble." (Statement given Mar. 23, 1908).

Over Three Years Later, Mr. Watkins said: "Since being cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, I have had no sign of kidney trouble."

DREAM OF WEALTH COMES TRUE

Poor Little Girl is Awarded $16,000 for Her Injuries.

Boston, Mass.—To be a poor little girl with the poor little girl's dream of some day becoming a princess with untold wealth and then to suddenly find that the wealthy part of the dream has come true, is the experience of 15-year-old Josephine Romano.

Josephine's dream of wealth came true when she was awarded $16,000 by a jury for injuries sustained several years ago when she was hit and tripped by a live wire which was dangling from one of the Boston elevated poles. She was so severely burned about the face and hands that the marks will remain on her body for life.

"It is so much money that I don't know what to do with it," she said. "I think I'll put it in the bank and then be a real lady."

ITS FISH, SNAKE OR A LIZARD

Resembles a Four-Cornered Kite and Breathes Through Its Gills.

Elkhart, Ind.—A strange creature, presenting anatomical characteristics which might be attributed to fish, snake or lizard, has been placed on exhibition in a business house here. No one has found a name that seems to fit the animal, or reptile, which was caught by Grant Hooper and Carl York, fishermen.

The body of the creature is twelve inches long, and in shape resembles the old-fashioned four-cornered dart kite. The head, in form, is like a snake's, but the resemblance ends there, for four sharp tusks protrude from the mouth. Apparently the creature breathes through gills similar to those of a fish. The horns and ears, which follow closely the form of the human ear, give a peculiar appearance to the head. The skin or hide is black and white in color.

Mathematical Discovery.

According to an Italian mathematician, every person in the world could stand comfortably in an area of 500 square miles, while a graveyard about the size of Colorado would bury all of them.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SNEEZED OUT A WAR SOUVENIR

Leaden Pellet Man Had Carried Since the Hot Time at Gettysburg.

Newton, N. C.—After carrying a bullet in his head for fifty years, or ever since the battle of Gettysburg, Calvin Cook, a Confederate soldier living in Catawba County, N. C., has sneezed from his nose a leaden pellet commonly called "backshot." He was wounded in the head at Gettysburg and eventually recovered from the wound only to be troubled many years by what was designated as some sort of growth in his nasal passages. During a recent sneezing fit he "blew" his nose with uncommon vigor and out rolled his souvenir of the greatest battle of the Civil War. His nasal trouble vanished when the "growth" rolled out.

Rather than disappoint the anxious spectators a bunch of the local boys got together and gave Manager Jones's men a chance to show the folks their classy work. The contest was close and the interests was very high and every one was pleased with the showing made by the Local team. The Local team is in fine shape and the Manager Dr. Jones is very confident that his men will be able to give the neighboring teams opposition stronger than they have had in recent years. The Warren boys will meet our locals on the Local Turf in Sowders Park next Saturday. It is expected that this will be a warm contest as these two teams seem to be old time foes. Already a number of games are scheduled but we are not quite full up. Any team wanting to book games may get full information by writing to B. P. Jones Manager, Artemus, Ky.
